

Foster Parent College: Children With Autism

The growing number of children diagnosed with autism increases the possibility that foster, kinship, and adoptive parents will face this challenging disability. Dr. Robert Nickel, Professor of Pediatrics and nationally respected authority on autism, offers insight into Autism Spectrum Disorders (ASD) based on his many years of experience as a developmental pediatrician.

This course examines the core deficits of autism: communication, social skills, and play. Also covered are developmental delay, Functional Behavior Assessment, Asperger syndrome, and medical issues commonly experienced by children with autism. An extensive set of handouts and resources for parents is included.

Use For:

- Foster, adoptive and kinship parents
