

Foster Parent College: Child Safety and Supervision

Foster children present challenging safety issues in and out of the home. A child's past experiences and current behaviors often present surprises to the foster family. This course helps viewers understand these challenges and offers strategies and tools to help keep foster children and foster families safe.

In this course, Michael F. Quinn, safety expert, social worker, and foster family agency supervisor, offers sound, practical advice and gives parents the tools they need to develop and implement safety plans for the home and off-site environments.

Topics covered include pre-placement preparation and planning, house rules, safety plans, reporting incidences, and working with the childcare team.

Use For:

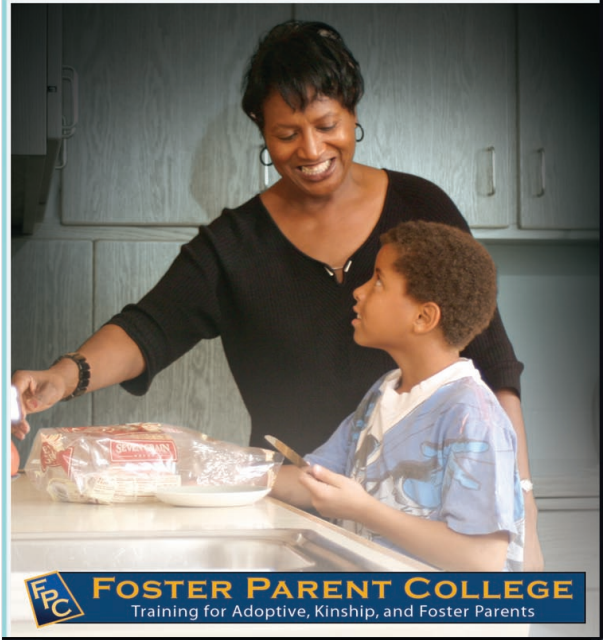

- Foster, adoptive and kinship parents
- Group trainings
