

Learning Changes

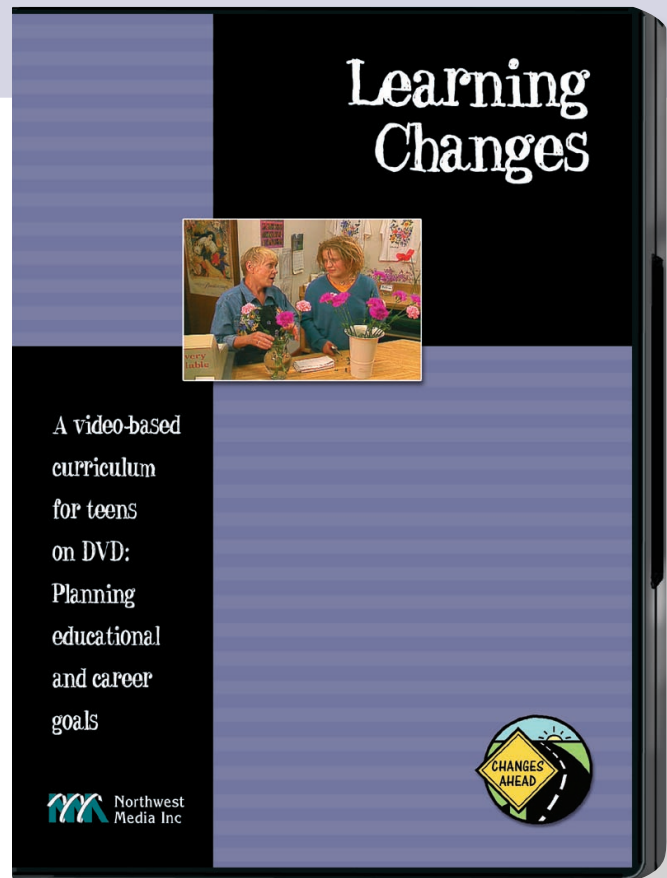

Five very different teens attend an education workshop. Their initial reluctance turns into a discovery about personal learning styles. With their teacher and each other, they learn to see the future in positive ways, build on their learning strengths and skills, make plans to complete their education, and embark on a career path.

Full of enjoyable, hands-on activities to help teens discover their personal learning styles, develop a personal action plan, learn about options for getting a high school diploma and financial aid, and explore how to get organized with a day planner. Includes plans and reproducible materials for two 90-minute classes.
