

Re-Education of Foster and Adoptive Children: Prospects for a Healthy Life

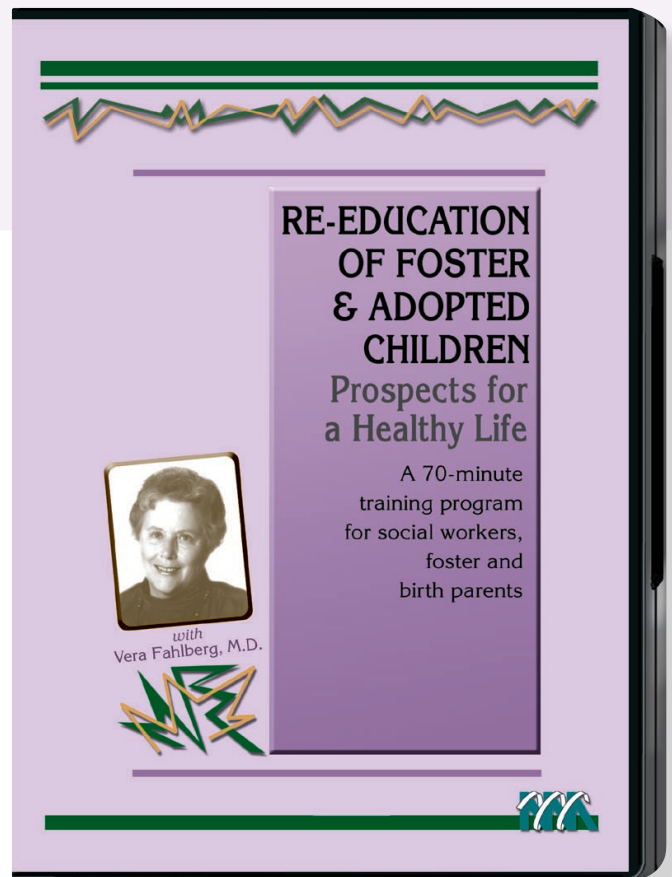

Children from dysfunctional backgrounds often bring problem behavior to their new homes. Foster and adoptive parents can prepare for this by developing a re-education plan. Dr. Fahlberg describes how to overcome a child's resistance to change and provide both personal and social relearning experiences.

Dr. Fahlberg speaks openly, compassionately, and informatively on the importance of positive solutions. She brings the prospect of hope to families who care for abused and neglected children.
